DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nakamura et al (“Dislocation structure in compressed α -Al₂O₃ single crystals”, an English Translation (ET) is provided.

Nakamura et al discloses an α -Al₂O₃ single crystal is compressed at 1450°C along the slip plane and the dislocation density after deformation was about 10⁸/cm² (Abstract, pg 161, ET pgs 3, 4, and 6).

Referring to claim 2, Nakamura et al discloses a single crystal with a high density of dislocations. The recitation a device for high-speed dislocation-pipe diffusion of ions or electrons has not been given patentable weight because the recitation occurs in the preamble. A preamble is generally not accorded any patentable weight where it merely recites the purpose of a process or the intended use of a structure, and where the body of the claim does not depend on the preamble for completeness but, instead, the process steps or structural limitations are able to stand alone. See In re Hirao, 535 F.2d 67, 190 USPQ 15 (CCPA 1976) and Kropa v. Robie, 187 F.2d 150, 152, 88 USPQ 478, 481 (CCPA 1951). The α -Al₂O₃ single crystal is capable of being a device, thus meets all of the claimed structural limitations.

Referring to claim 5, Nakamura discloses heating to 1450°C which is within the claimed range of a brittle to ductile temperature, as evidenced by page 5 of applicant's specification which teaches the temperature range for alumina is 1050-2040°C. Nakamura also teaches cooling to room temperature, this reads on applicant's heat treatment of one-half or more of said melting point by absolute temperature because the crystal is at a temperature within the claimed range during cooling.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 3, 4, 6, and 7 are allowed.
4. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The closest prior art is Nakamura et al. Nakamura et al teaches compressing an α -Al₂O₃ single crystal at 1450°C along a slip plane to produce 10⁸/cm² dislocation defects. Nakamura et al does not teach introducing metal atoms through a diffusion treatment to produce quantum wires arranged along the dislocations or forming nano-hole bundles along the dislocations.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
